(15) Under S. 4 in Part I of the Regn XI of 1894 the term "assign" is defined, and S. 43 seems to empower the holder of a privilege to assign his rights thereto in favour of a third party. Again, the form of the application also seems to provide for cases of assignment (vide Second schedule at p. 14 of the Regn).

where such a right has been acquired under the conditions of the title.

(16) Since the right of assignment is expressly recognised under the Regn, there seems to be no good reason why the assignee should not be allowed to enjoy the privileges assigned over to him.

There seems to be no need to amend the Regn to meet the requirements of this particular case.

(17) The general question of amending the whole Regn has also been taken up, but it does not seem to be desirable that this individual case should be allowed to lie over till the Regn is amended. The case has to be dealt with under the Regn as it stands at present.

Designs. Every subsequent proceeding referred to in Sec 12 seems to me to refer to proceedings contemplated in the Regn. as for example the cases refd to in Secs. 40 & 41 of the Regn. The assignee may perhaps get his address recorded in the address Book under Sec 13 whether the transfer is an out & out assignment or limited to a share or interest therein.

24 In British India where the law was similar to ours before the Indian Patent & Designs Act of 1911 was passed applications of the kind now made used to be made, but such applications were not accompanied by any registration fee. See for example the application made to ours Govt. on 17-5-10 by the same firm of Solicitors & Patent agents before the act of 1911 came into operation. Perhaps it was then recorded in British India in the Register Book under Sec 12 & the address was noted in the address Book under Sec 13. The point has now been made quite clear & Sec 63 provides for the registration of assignments of patents.

We beg to acknowledge your favour dated 8th September in the 4 above matters.

Under Section 12(1) of your Act it is laid down that the Register of Inventions shall have entered and recorded "every subsequent proceeding relating to the Invention described therein".

We beg to apply under the provisions of this Section that the transfer of the Exclusive Privileges from the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana to the Standard Oil Co. of New York be entered in the Register of Inventions.

There appears to be no provision under your Act for the Registering of the Assignment itself but the above Section 12(1) clearly allows of an entry being made in the Register of Inventions that such an Assignment has taken place and the proof thereof has been satisfactorily submitted.

We beg to return therefore the 4 Assignments and the Attested Copies thereof and shall be glad if you will kindly make the necessary entries in the Register of Inventions, returning the original Assignments to us with Endorsements thereon that the transfers have been duly entered in the Register.
